Court Notes

Last Saturday Judge Woods filed in the Prothonotary's office opinions and decrees in the following matters:

In the case of George W. Crose vs. the P. R. B. Company, the plaintiff had recovered a verdict for $100 against the defendant for damages to freight while being carried by defendant company. A new trial was refused.

In the estate of W. H. Harderode, late of Snake Spring Township, deceased, a widow's appraisement had been filed giving the widow, Elizabeth Harderode, the sum of $17.37. After hearing on a rule against the executor to show cause why she should not be allowed the balance of $300, the court awarded her the difference, $282.63.

In the case of F. O. Reighard vs. The County of Bedford, plaintiff had recovered a verdict for $650 for damages caused to his property in Bedford Township in the construction of the state road. The court overruled a motion on the part of the defendant for a new trial and directed judgment to be entered on the verdict.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. Carl G. Mullin of Saxton, defendant had been fined $4 by S. H. Little, Esq., for selling ice cream in his restaurant on Sunday. Defendant took a certiorari to have the matter decided by the court. Without passing on the merits of the case, it was decided that there being no special allowance of the certiorari by the court, the proceeding should be dismissed.

In the estate of Levi C. Thomas, late of Broad Top Township, deceased, the claim of the widow, Rachel F. Thomas, for her $300 exemption was disallowed on the ground that she had acquiesced in the provisions of the will of decedent, and was too late in making her demand.

The Associate Judges met last Friday and approved the bond of H. H. Carpenter, Tax Collector of Londonderry Township, in the sum of $5,000, with W. J. Carpenter and J. W. Buchanan, as sureties.

William Beck was appointed Judge of Election for Southampton District No. 3 to fill the vacancy caused by the removal from the district of H. C. O'Neal, the duly elected official.

The Associate Judges met on Thursday and acted on the following:

In the execution of C. E. Specht vs. J. B. Ott, defendant presented his petition to stay the writ and open the judgment and let him into a defense, and a rule was awarded on the plaintiff to show cause why this should not be done.

In the executions of Homer Cessna vs. D. J. Miller a similar motion was presented by the defendant and a rule awarded to which Attorney R. C. McNamara appeared.

The meeting was called to order by the president, George D. Fahnenback of Reading, promptly at 1:30 p. m. Owing to the absence of the chaplain, Comrade R. C. Smith was called upon to open the meeting with prayer, after which a short address of welcome was made by Chief Burgess Ritchey of Ebensburg which was responded to by Fletcher C. George, a son of our old quartermaster and Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements. Both addresses were greatly appreciated by the comrades and their friends.

The following officers were then unanimously elected for the ensuing year: President, James Sweger, Lancaster; Vice Presidents, John G. Mohr, Reading, and Captain W. W. Moore, Wrightsville; Secretary and Treasurer, Josiah Hissong, Point; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Mabel White Telford, Indiana; Chaplain, Joseph L. Leonard, Harrisburg. Lancaster was chosen as the place for holding the 21st annual reunion. The date was left to the official board to arrange.

Comrade J. H. Kennedy of Swissvale was then called upon to open the campfire, which was followed by a lecture on his prison life in Andersonville prison by James A. Wharton. Mrs. Juliet White Watson then gave us a good address. The campfire was then adjourned until 8 o'clock p. m., when it was re-opened and an excellent address was made by Ex-Judge A. V. Barker, and experiences of quite a number of comrades were told which interested the others. Secretary Hissong called the attention of the comrades to the fact that we were celebrating the 50th anniversary of the organization of the 55th Pa. Vols. Our colonel's commission dated August 12, the commencement of the organization which lasted until in November when the organization was complete.

The following comrades and friends were present, J. H. Kennedy, Commissary Sergeant, Mrs. E. D. Fry and Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Fry, of Cresson; Mrs. C. E. Fry of Aspinwall; Mrs. H. T. Sletts of Johnstown, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. George, of Lilly; Mr. A. Apple and sister, Miss Nora Catherine Apple, of Charlotterville; Mrs. W. W. The association tendered a unanimous vote of thanks to Fletcher C. George and his committee of Sons of Veterans, to the County Commissioners for the use of the court house and its decorations and to all concerned in helping to make our reunion such a success.

"I haven't the least doubt but that the whole bunch will go to heaven when their call comes," remarked a thoughtful man of much intelligence and ability.

"Men who went forth at the call of their country and swerved not from their line of duty, but kept themselves clean of heart and strove their utmost for God and country are the sort that Christ died for. These are they whom He designated the 'salt of the earth.' What better specimens of manhood can be found on the earth than just these? They look to me like God's chosen, and I would be willing to take my place with them in that long procession passing before St. Peter's seat at the entrance to heaven."

It does look that way for these men have, with rare exception, been comrades to all in want, or in distress, and are glad that they have lived and been permitted to take part in the greatest world-work since the earth was first inhabited. Everyone of them points with glowing pride to the wonderful civilization of today and with pardonable pride for what he wrought upon it.

KEEP UP AGITATION

Good Roads Are Within Our Reach if We Demand Them.

We believe all progressive citizens of Bedford County have become interested in the work of improving our public highways, especially in the advanced measures pursued by some of the leading citizens of our neighboring township.

The writer, at least, is anxious that this may not be the end, but the beginning of the employment of a more systematic method of "working out," as the saying goes, the taxes levied from year to year for road purposes. As in many other things, we are just beginning to see the folly of our old ways.

Our state has made appropriations for keeping in repairs dirt roads, as if our roads have been at some time during the past really rightly constructed.

The fact of the matter is our forefathers have, in many instances, simply followed the cow paths and deer paths through the forests, laying low the timber just sufficient for them to get through by their rude means of travel. The paths have been traveled down through the ages, ruts have been cut, making ditches, mostly two, one for each wheel. In many places these ditches have widened and deepened until, instead of the two, we have one ditch or a water way, which most of us seem content to hunt our way over and accept as a public highway.

However, we have been trying to prevent by the means of breakers and culverts the ultimate destruction of what we call our roads. How well we have succeeded in adding any improvements needs only the arguments of our oldest citizens; some claiming they are better today than they were twenty-five or fifty years ago, others argue they are not. We will not stop to argue this point, but will only say that we are not satisfied with their present condition. No doubt our fathers saw visions of better things for the future.

We have all heard this problem of better roads or "Good Roads" discussed not only by the humblest citizen, but the more enlightened and scientific genius, and in summing it all up we find the problem has not been entirely solved to fit twentieth century conditions.

Our National Government has figured that 45,000,000 or the 90,000,000 dollars "worked out" annually on our township roads is practically wasted. We will not attempt to prove or disprove this statement, but if it be true, it is due to our attempt to keep in repair the cow paths that were chosen a half century or more ago for our public highways. During the past ten or twelve years as a member of the auditing committee of Harrison Township, I have been in close touch with the manner in which the moneys have been "worked out," the whole system appearing at times a mere farce; possibly a more suitable term would be "farmed out."

This is intended as the first of a series of articles from Harrison. Will point out later and in detail some of the unnecessary expenditures now employed on our roads and try to show and emphasize some of the necessary and less expensive means which are now being practiced.

Will add here that the writer does not drive an auto, but as a farmer, travels the roads as most of our farmers and knows a good piece of road if he sees it. A. A. Hyde

FALL SEEDING OF CLOVER

No Nurse Crop Needed—Seed Should Be Inoculated.

The failure of clover on many farms this season has compelled some change of plans. What are we to do with those fields?

The very best way to handle these fields is to get them in shape at once and seed them down to clover and timothy, without any nurse crop. The following quotation is from Prof. W. J. Spillman's book on "Farm Grasses," and states better than I could hope to the exact conditions that I have observed over and over again in the fields, viz:

"Just why wheat or other grain sown with the grass should be called a nurse crop is not clear. It would be more appropriate to call it a robber crop. The idea that it protects the grass probably arose from the fact that, when the grain is removed in hot, dry weather, the grasses are apt to dry up. Having been shaded and weakened by the grain, they are unable to bear the full heat of the sun, particularly when the supply of moisture is short, and the grain crop has robbed them of their scant supply."

(Again I quote from Prof. Spillman, p. 84) as follows: "It is well known that when timothy is sown in the fall with grain it does not make a crop the next year. But it is not so well known that when timothy is sown in the late summer or early fall without a nurse crop it makes the best crop of its life the next year. Another method, used extensively by the most progressive farmers, is to sow all the grass and clover seed together in the late summer or early fall (usually late in August) without a nurse crop. This gives an abundant harvest of hay the next year."

Let us apply these statements to our local conditions. We can divide the farms into two classes: (1) those on which there has been little or no trouble in getting good stands of clover, and (2) those which have been having trouble with the clover frequently. With the former class the fall seeding of timothy and the spring seeding of clover bring satisfactory results and no change is suggested. With the latter class a stand of clover is much surer where the seeding is made in August, after grain has been harvested. Until such lands have been restored to normal production of clover the latter method of seeding will undoubtedly give the best returns for money and labor. Moreover it is very important to get stands of clover worked into the rotation to prevent the running down of the land. There is no need to preach clover to any farmer.

The present conditions are exceptional. There has been this year a clover failure where clover usually is very good. The fields where clover was seeded were intended for hay next year; and without them the hay crop is going to be short. By all means these fields should be seeded down to clover and timothy without nurse crops to make the hay supply for next year and to keep the clover in the rotation.

Clover seeded in this way should be covered at seeding time, as should also the timothy. Usually a light harrowing or a brushing will do this work. Do not roll the land and let it lie that way. If you roll it after (or before) seeding, follow at once with the spike tooth to break up the top soil and save moisture.

The very great value of inoculating the clover seed should not be forgotten. The inoculating material costs nothing, the work of inoculation takes but a few minutes; it cannot possibly damage the seed; and in very many cases coming under my personal observation inoculation has saved clover from winter killing and from dry-killing.

Even where the bacteria are established in the fields, I have found that inoculation with the fresh cultures has imparted fresh vigor, and has saved clover from dry-killing, while, right beside it, uninoculated clover has been partially or totally destroyed. If you are going to seed clover this fall send me a postal asking for inoculating material, and I will send it to you at once with instructions how to use it. A. B. Ross.

ROBBED CATARRH

Steals Energy and Will Power From Its Victims.

Catarrh robs its victim of energy—some physicians say of will power. That may be the reason why thousands of catarrh sufferers haven't ambition enough to accept this fair and square offer by F. W. Jordan which makes without any why and wherefores or red tape of any kind.

F. W. Jordan says "I guarantee HYOMEI to cure catarrh, acute or chronic, or money back," and that offer is open to every reader of The Gazette.

HYOMEI (pronounce it High-ome) is the purest Australian Eucalyptus combined with Thymol and other germ killing antiseptics. Pour a few drops into the small vest pocket HYOMEI inhaler and breathe it into the lungs over the unflamed membrane infested with catarrh germs.

It is pleasant to use—it kills the germs, soothes the sore membrane, and cures catarrh; if it doesn't your money back.

A bottle of HYOMEI costs 50 cents at F. W. Jordan's and druggists everywhere. A complete outfit, which includes a bottle of HYOMEI, a hard rubber inhaler and simple instructions for use costs $1.00.

Life

We live, but not to dream, or drift,
For labor calls us tools to lift,
And Love directs us as God's gift.
To live ignobly merits blame,
To idly fold the hands brings shame—

Life calls to service in God's name.
Through life a battle rages long,
But Truth and Love shall conquer Wrong,
And then—comes Victory's glory song —H. B. T.

A Great Advantage to Working Men

J. A. Maple, 125 S. 7th St., Steubenville, O., says: "For years I suffered from weak kidneys and a severe bladder trouble. I learned of Foley Kidney Pills and their wonderful cures. I began taking them and sure enough I had as good results as any I heard about. My backache left me and to one of my business, expressman, that alone is a great advantage. My kidneys acted free and normal, and that saved me a lot of misery. It is now a pleasure to work where it used to be a misery. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me and have my highest praise." Ed. D. A Musical Prodigy.
In 1841 arrived in London a Russian boy, called Antoine Rubinstein, not twelve years old, whose performances on the piano had excited wonder and delight among the musical amateurs. He was equally skilled in the ancient as well as modern style of playing and gave with wonderful effect the most difficult passages of Bach or Thalberg. All this, too, was done with the utmost apparent ease, and in the most difficult passages he frequently indulged himself in grotesque imitations of the peculiar trickeries of the composer upon whose music he was engaged.—The Russian Boy.

WEIGHED THE ELEPHANT.

A Problem Which a Hindu Prince Was Able to Solve.

There is a story often told in India of Shajee, a Hindu prince, who on a certain occasion showed himself almost as clever as Archimedes.

A high official had made a vow that he would distribute to the poor the weight of his own elephant in silver money. But the great difficulty that at first presented itself was the mode of ascertaining what this weight really was. All the learned and clever men of the court seemed to have endeavored in vain to construct a machine of sufficient power to weigh the elephant.

At length Shajee came forward and suggested a plan which was simple and yet ingenious in the highest degree. He caused the unwieldy animal to be conducted along a stage specially made for the purpose by the water-side into a flat bottomed boat. Then, having marked on the boat the height to which the water reached after the elephant had weighed it down, the latter was taken out and stones substituted in sufficient quantity to hold the boat to the same line. The stones were then taken to the scales, and thus, to the amazement of the court, was ascertained the true weight of the elephant.—Exchange.

FIGHTING FISH.

In the Rage of Battle They Turn From Dull to Brilliant Colors.

In the gardens of Singapore it is the custom to stock the ponds with all manner of queer fishes, many of them of the fighting variety so dear to the heart of the orientals. This species of fish is so combative that it is only necessary to place two of them near each other, like fighting cocks, and perhaps to irritate them a little to bring on a lively conflict.

They, at once charge each other with fins erect, at the same time changing color in their excitement from the dull of gray greens to brilliant reds and blues. Indeed, confinement in close quarters is not needed to arouse their combative propensities.

Place two glass jars close together, with one of these fighting fish in each and they will at once swim round and endeavor to charge each other through the interposed glass.

Even a single fish seeing himself reflected in a mirror will dart at his own image and, irritated all the more by his failure to reach his supposed enemy, will assume the most brilliant hues. Seeing his reflected antagonist do the same, he will redouble his efforts to reach him.—Exchange.

Photographs For Lawsuits.

One call for services a professional photographer dislikes above all others and that is to get an order for a picture that is to be used as evidence in a lawsuit. The photographers who are most in demand for this purpose are the busiest ones, those who make a specialty of taking pictures of news events for the papers and magazines. When any one wants photographic evidence he is likely to remember the name of some firm of professionals that he has seen often in print and asks them to do the job.

"We wouldn't mind that sort of work so much if taking the picture was all that there was to it," said one of these picture men. "We get $3 or $5 for the picture. Later we get a subpoena, and we have to send to court the man that took it, to swear that he recognizes his work, that he took the picture, that he never was arrested and a lot of other fool stuff that uses up a day's time. Therefore we never touch such a job knowingly." —New York Sun

A Curious Locomotive.

The Darjeeling-Himalayas railway is one of the most curious in the world. It is of two foot gauge and on account of the steepness is full of loops, curves and spirals, many of the curves having only seventy feet radius. Some of the gradients are as high as one foot in twenty eight. A special type of locomotive, the Garratt, had to be made for it at Manchester. This locomotive was required by the specifications to be able to travel on reverse curves not exceeding sixty feet radius, with only twenty feet of length of tangent between the curves. The engine consists of a frame supported at each end by four wheeled bogies, each of which is described as a miniature locomotive without boiler. The boiler is carried on the frame between the bogies.—Youth's Companion.

Both Wrong.

Sandy and his master drove up to the small station as the train approached. "Here's yer train, sir," said Sandy. "That is not my train," replied the master, who had his own ideas about correct speech. "But it's the train I am going by." But it happened to be a special train and didn't stop at the station, whereupon Sandy exclaimed, "We're both wrong, for it's neither your train nor the one ye're gaun by, but it's the one that's gaun by you."

Betrayed.

MRS. ELLA GILCHRIST

A Prophecy

By CAROL H. PIERCE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the civil war was coming on Enoch Armsby, a Connecticut Yankee, who had taken it into his head to run a plantation on the Mississippi river some twenty miles south of Vicksburg, found himself a northern man with southern interests. Despite the differences between him and his neighbors they didn't drive him out. His son, Zeke, who had lived in the south longer than in the north, enlisted in the Confederate army, and this disposed the southerners more than ever to let the father alone.

Enoch Armsby told his southern friends that there were reasons why the north would prevail.

"I guess," he said, "nothin' can stand against the south for fightin', but it isn't fightin' that's goin' to win. The northern people are full of resources. When they come down here you'll find that they will convert a ferryboat into a man-of-war, build bridges with cotton bales, and when they capture one o' your railroads they'll git out a time table and run it nearer the schedule than you fellers can do it in time of peace."

"I reckon one southerner can whip five Yankees," would be the reply.

"S'posin' they do. S'posin' they kill three out o' the five Yankees and make prisoners of the other two. The two they don't kill will invent some way o' gittin' out o' jail and go on fightin'. They will be joined by three more Yankees and be as strong as ever. That'll go right on."

The Federal forces slowly made their way down the river and in time the great event of the war in that region, the siege of Vicksburg, began. Zeke Armsby participated in the fighting that took place in the rear of that city, was captured and confined with a lot of Confederate prisoners of war in a manufactory of undertakers' supplies. When the news reached his father the neighbors said:

"Mr. Armsby, reckon yer son 'll have a chance to show that Yankee ingenuity yo' been braggin' about now. Reckon he'll find a way fo' gettin' out."

"I guess Zeke 'll git out if any one can."

"How's he goin' to do it? That factory is on a point o' land stickin' out into the river. There's a high wall on one side and water on the other. The Yanks hain't such fools as to give their prisoners boats, are they?"

"I guess not," the father admitted.

"Well, we'll see what Yankee ingenuity 'll do. There's several hundred southerners in that building, and if one northerner invents a way to git out we'll give up the point about the superiority of yo' people."

One morning one of Mr. Armsby's neighbors stood on the bank looking up the river, shading his eyes with his hands. Another person saw him, and, having nothing to do, walked slowly out to see what the first was looking at. Another and another joined the party, and finally Armsby himself appeared.

"Somep'n quarr?" asked one of the party.

"Powerful quarr. I'd reckon it was driftwood, only fo' somep'n shinin' on it. 'Thar—did yo' see the flash?"

Every one saw it and wondered. The driftwood or whatever it was came rapidly nearer, for the current of the Mississippi is by no means slow, and as the thing approached many were the comments made upon it. Some said it was a log that had been squared, some that it was an oblong box, while others noticed that it was smaller at each end than in the middle. As it rolled something, either glass or metal, occasionally caught the rays of the sun and sent out a flash.

"By gum, it's a coffin!" exclaimed one of the watchers.

"A coffin?" exclaimed the others.

"What can a coffin be doin' sailin' down the river?"

"It is a coffin, sho'."

While these remarks were being made the coffin—for such it was—was approaching the bank on which the party was standing.

"There must be a co'pse in it," remarked one, "or it would roll over."

"That thing that reflects the light is the plate."

The coffin floated by, and as it did so the upper part of the lid was lifted off by the said co'pse, and a pale face rose and looked at the party with frightening effect.

"By jing," exclaimed Armsby, "its my boy Zeke!"

"Reckon," said several others.

"Dad," cried the young man, "come out in a boat and git me. I haven't got no oars."

Armsby ran downstream to where a boat was tied, rowed out to the coffin and towed it ashore. Then Zeke told them that in the undertaker's supply manufactory (his prison) he had discovered a pile of coffins. He had launched himself in one of them before daylight.

"Feller citizens," spoke up one of the party, "we'll neve' conquer sich people as that as long as God Almighty lives."

A conference was held, and it was decided that the people of the county be recommended to have nothing to do with the war. They felt assured that a people who would use coffins for boats instead of burying corpses would be found invincible. Enoch Armsby simply said, "I told you so," and when the Confederacy collapsed became the most influential planter in those parts.

CASTING ASIDE A FORTUNE

Declined to Swap an Old Vest for a Worn-Out Farm Full of Diamonds.

In this dry of great fortunes it is not unusual to read in the daily news columns of great fortunes being lost and won in a day, and the following anecdote is quoted to illustrate how one man cast aside an opportunity to become many times a millionaire.

Years ago a man named Saltzmann owned an estate in Grigoland, and adjoining his property was an old worn down farm that had not been worked on account of its poor soil and the lack of necessary water. The owner of this farm met Herr Saltzmann one day and offered to trade the farm for an old waistcoat he had seen him wearing.

As Saltzmann did not wish to burden himself with a piece of worthless land he kindly refused the offer. A few years later big clear diamonds were found on this waste stretch, and now millions of dollars could not purchase it.

THE OPENING OF SCHOOLS

On Monday the public schools of Bedford, as well as other districts, open for the year's work, and it is important that all pupils be recorded the first day and continue to attend regularly during the term. Let there be neither weak nor broken links in the term's chain if they can possibly be avoided; it is far more difficult to replace or repair them when a considerable portion of the chain has been forged.

Let pupils consider the words of the poet:

"For the structure that we raise
Time is with materials filled;
Our todays and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build.

"Truly shape and fashion these;
Leaves no yawning gaps between;
Think not, because no man sees
Such things will remain unseen."

The parent who is not compelled to do so, makes a grave mistake when he keeps his son or daughter from school. The value of regular attendance cannot be overestimated, and the child, thinking only of the pleasures of the present, should be guided and directed by the parent who more fully appreciates the value of an education.

Boys and girls, start right; build permanently and securely the structure in the environment of which the remainder of life is to be spent, and later you will read with its full force: "The great object of all knowledge is to enlarge and purify the soul; to fill the mind with noble contemplations and to furnish a refined pleasure."

Respond to the bell Monday morning and be there to answer at each succeeding roll call; prepare your lessons well each succeeding day and you will have the pleasure of choosing your life work; fail to do so and the work that others assign you in after years will be irksome. Think it over.

ENROUTE WESTWARD

Mrs. McCallion Describes Scenery Along Route to Arizona.
Winslow, Ariz., August 22, 1911.
Editor of Bedford Gazette,
Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sir:—After a long delay I fill a promise I made you, that of writing a sketch of my journey to this far-away land of Arizona. We started from Cessna August 7th, traveled over the Allegheny Mountain and reached Pittsburgh at night. Our view of the country was hid until we reached Chicago. Here again, we were changed into new scenery after embarking on the "Santa Fe." This road travels through a wonderful corn belt. The principal crops were corn and oats, all through Illinois and Kansas. These immense cornfields as far as the eye could carry were visible, when again night set in before we reached Kansas City, much to our regret. This famous city holds an important place in the business activities of the whole Southwest. The vast plains whereon the Indian and buffalo roamed supreme are now cultivated and sustain millions of cattle, mules and horses. We passed through Hutchinson. From here the road winds along the Arkansas River "with occasional digressions." When Dodge City was reached we were told to change the time of our watches. A short cut from the latter place Las Vegas along the Cimarron River, Colorado is first seen as a plateau of 4,000 feet above the seal level. Railway and river continue close neighbors through the gently ascending plains here.

Irrigation is the method of farming and consequently vast fields of alfalfa, melon patches and beet sugar acres meet the eye. Holly and Garden City are centers of this irrigated district. Every mile of our progress westward carried us into a higher altitude until we reached the foothills of the Rockies. Slowly the Raton Range gathers significance directly ahead until it becomes a towering wall at whose feet lies the city of Trinidad. Here begins the final ascent to the lofty mountain gateway, the "Raton Pass." The grade is remarkably steep; two powerful mountain engines are required to haul the train at a pace hardly faster than a walk. The many curves and jerks one is subjected to makes this part of the trip hard, but the scenery is such that cannot be described by the pen. The hills and sand rocks shut off for a time the scenery, until you reach a beautiful scene as it were a round globe. The sky seemed to reach the earth and the beauties of the moon in its fullness lent a picture to us that is of lasting duration. After this sleep overlook us.

Next we were traveling through the desert and through New Mexico with no attraction only the great wonder of how those people in that desert land could find subsistence for man and beast. This great Santa Fe road is their only source of livelihood. We only traveled a short distance through Arizona until we reached Winslow, our destination, on Thursday noon, August 10, arriving three and one-half hours late, owing to a wreck ahead of us.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

A Good Wife Wanted

I want a wife who prefers good clothes to cheap finery; a wife who likes the simple and good things of this old world and hates the complex and gaudy; a wife who knows how to make a good mince pie and does not know how to flirt; a wife who could not be satisfied in a modern gilded cage or in an old-fashioned barn; a wife whose taste would prompt her to furnish our modest home with beautiful and useful old-fashioned things. I'll furnish the money, but should want some of the quaint and beautiful old-time furniture at Mrs. Lyons' Little Antique Shop purchased for our home.

P. S. As I am nearly 40, prefer a girl not less than 30 or more than 38 years old. Address, Alexander Wellington, Bedford, Pa.

HIGH PRICED PEACHES.

The Ones They Had in London, Perhaps, but Not in New York.

They jacked into the breakfast room at one of the big New York hotels the other day—snicky, precise and querulous. They had just returned from a tour of Europe and gave that continent the big talk at every chance.

"Have you no South African peaches?" they asked plaintively. "We have been stopping at the Savoy in London, and there were plenty of South African peaches."

The hotel manager was found. He hastened to the complaining ones. Certainly the hotel had South African peaches. They were imported especially for the hotel guests; came from the same peach orchard that the Savoy's peaches did. The faces of the traveled persons did not light up with joy and appreciation, as one would think.

"How much are they?" they asked with a singular timidity.

"Three dollars each," said the hotel manager. The traveled persons promptly protested. "But we only paid—how—$2.50 for them at the Savoy," said they. The hotel manager expressed his regret at the overcharge. He said they might have them at the same price that they paid at the Savoy in London, and how many would they like to have?

"Haw, Alfred," said one of the plaintive traveled persons to the other plaintive traveled person, "let us have—how—one of those dead old fashioned breakfasts of ham and eggs."

"Right, old dear," said Alfred.

The hotel manager went away grinning softly to himself. He had never had any peaches from South Africa.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

POSTAL PUZZLES.

They Were Easy Reading For Uncle Sam's Clever Officials.

A letter with the addressee's face roughly drawn on the envelope and the words "Baltimore, Md.," following wasn't too great a puzzle for the men who decipher mail addresses for Uncle Sam. The letter was sent from Clarksburg, W. Va., by J. M. Crouch. When it reached the Baltimore post-office the postmaster said it had to be delivered. Several of the experts were puzzling over how that trick could be turned when the mail carrier in whose district a big hotel is walked up to a group around the man holding the letter and said, "Why, that's Sam Hoover, chief clerk of the—hotel." And it was for Sam, who opened it and learned that his friend wished to engage a room for that night. When Crouch arrived at the hotel the room was ready for him.

About twenty years ago a European peasant mailed on the other side of the Atlantic a letter the envelope of which bore this sort of address:

HANS STEIGLICH.

First House in America.

It was easy for New York postoffice men, the first house in America to immigrants being Castle Garden, where they were then received. In Castle Garden Hans was found without delay.—New York Press.

This is a splendid record for a township high school with only eight years' growth. The school was opened with Scripture reading by Prof. Barney, principal of the school, after which several selections were sung by the school. After some words of greeting and a few remarks concerning the year's work, Prof. Barney introduced to the school his assistant, J. Leon Maurer, of West Chester Normal who, in a pleasant and interesting manner, told how agreeably he was surprised with the comfortable building and the beautiful surroundings, and assured the students that he will do what he can to make the school a success. After a short address by Mr. Brumbaugh, the students were assigned to their places and the real work of the school began.

If you have not yet made up your mind as to the choice of your school for the fall term, write to the Lock Haven State Normal School for a catalog. There are still a few rooms that can be secured; although the coming year promises to be the largest in the history of the school.

It has an ideal location, fine equipment, and in some respects the best Training School in the state. Its library is also one of the most attractive, is carefully catalogued and is made up of a fine collection of books. Students are taught how to use the library and when they graduate they are capable of organizing small libraries in the public schools. Its laboratories are arranged in such a way that each individual student has a table to himself. It has organized a working museum which is both attractive and useful. The fall term begins September 11th.

Their Representative

A Story for Labor Day Showing a New Way of Ending a Strike

"I'm sorry, miss, to have to tell you that I'm going to leave you."

A girl of twenty, whose red and white complexion bespoke Irish blood, stood before her mistress, fingering her apron with evident embarrassment.

"Why, Maggie, what have I done?"

"Nothing, miss."

"Then why are you going to leave me?"

"Well, miss—the truth is—why, miss—I'm going to be married."

"Oh, I see. Who are you going to marry, Maggie?"

"Jim Doolan, that works in the Ainsworth factory."

"The Ainsworth factory?"

"Yes, miss."

Margaret Etheridge, the girl's mistress, was interested in the Ainsworth company as a stockholder and through its president and manager, Richard Ainsworth.

"I'm sorry to lose you, Maggie," said Miss Etheridge, "but if you are going to be married, you can depend upon me to give you whatever you will need in the way of clothes, household linen and other things, to enable you to set up housekeeping."

"Thank you, miss."

Maggie was married and went to live with her husband in a small suit of rooms. Jim's wages were not very large, but the couple made them do very well till the first child came, when they were obliged to take a backward step financially by incurring a considerable bill for medical attendance. Then Jim was taken sick, and that increased the indebtedness.

Meanwhile Richard Ainsworth had been pressing an unsuccessful suit with Miss Etheridge. He had greatly increased the output of the Ainsworth company since he took the management, and to the book value of the stock 50 per cent had been added. Indeed, Richard Ainsworth had come to be considered one of the smartest young business men in the state. But there were differences between him and Margaret Etheridge that prevented her from accepting him. Those business qualifications for which the world applauded him did not appeal to her. She did not understand the methods by which silent partner, capital, was made to absorb the lion's share of the profits of a business. She saw the operatives—men, women and children—going to the works early in the morning and, having worked hard all day, return in the evening to their shabby homes to repeat the process day after day. They were working to pay dividends on her stock, while she, who did nothing, lived in affluence. It seemed to her that there was something wrong. She appealed to Richard Ainsworth for an explanation, but his explanations were not satisfactory. His reasons convinced her, but her heart, her sense of justice, were unimpaired by them.

"Why can't you pay your operatives enough to enable them to live more comfortably?" she asked Mr. Ainsworth.

"Because of competition."

"Explain."

"Other concerns would be able to undersell and we would be forced out of business."

"Why not appropriate a portion of the dividends, which are enormous, to the operatives?"

"Because of several reasons, the most pertinent of which is that the stockholders would object."

"I am a stockholder. You may cut my dividends in half, giving one half to the operatives."

"You are one among hundreds; the rest, instead of being willing to give up their profits, are howling for more. My dear Margaret, you don't understand such things."

"Does anybody understand them?"

"Yes, one—Providence."

One day Maggie Doolan sent a pitiful message to Margaret, scrawled in pencil on a bit of paper, saying that she was ill, her husband was away at his work all day, the children had no one to take care of them, and Jim's wages were pledged for debts. Besides this, there was nothing to eat in the house. Margaret immediately sallied forth with a well filled purse and, stopping at the provision shops by the way, carried comfort to the distressed. As she was coming away, Jim came in with a rueful countenance and, throwing himself into a chair, dropped his head in his arms on a table.

"What is it, Jim?" asked his wife in a frightened tone.

"The strike is on," was the mournful reply.

"Oh, heavens!" cried Maggie in dismay.

"What are the hands striking for?" asked Margaret Etheridge.

"Ten per cent advance all around."

"And do you mean that you will have no income whatever till the matter is settled?"

"I do."

"How much do you earn?"

"Twenty-one dollars a week."

"Very well. Every weekly pay day I will send you a check for that amount."

Margaret left, leaving a relieved and thankful household behind her.

The strike proved to be a prolonged one. One evening while it was in progress Richard Ainsworth and Margaret Etheridge were sitting in her home discussing the matter.

"Why do you not give the men what they demand?" she asked.

"For a number of reasons—first, if I do within six months they will make another demand, and so on until we pay them so much that we can't manufacture at a profit. This will drive us out of business and them out of employment."

"Why can't a compromise be effected?"

"The question is a difficult one to answer. If these men were represented by one of their own number a compromise might be effected. But they are represented by one or more persons whose interest I don't consider their interest. The questions between the laborer and the capitalist are those constantly arising between partners in business. Whenever the interests of persons and peoples are intertwined there can only be loss to both in a want of harmony. When the capitalist is unjust to the laborer he in the long run injures his business. When the laborer is excessive in his demands upon the capitalist he injures the business in which he is a partner."

Ainsworth had scarcely spoken the last word when there was evidence of a commotion without. Some one cried: "Hurrah for the strike sympathizer!"

Ainsworth and Margaret looked at each other wondering.

"Where's the leddy? Come out!"

There was a ring at the door bell. Margaret chose to answer the summons herself. A workman stood at the door, who, pulling respectfully the rim of his tattered hat, said to her:

"There's a lot of us here, miss, that hearin' ye have contributed to the strikers' fund by paying Jim Doolan's family his weekly wages, have come to thank ye. Would ye mind showin' yourself on the porch?"

Margaret went out and saw a crowd of upturned faces, lighted only by a street lamp.

"Three cheers for the leddy strike sympathizer!" cried the man who had brought her out.

The cheers were given with a will, and when quiet was restored Margaret said:

"I can't say exactly that I am a strike sympathizer, but I can say that I am a sympathizer with you and your families. I am a stockholder in the Ainsworth company, and if by throwing off all my dividends except what I need to keep body and soul together I could end this strike I would do so."

"Good for you!" "Let the other stockholders do the same!" "For God's sake, do it!"

"How would you like to make me your representative to confer in your name with the management of the Ainsworth company with a view to a compromise?"

"Bully!" "Go ahead!" "Do it!"

Margaret's introducer held up his hand for silence and said:

"All in favor of Miss Etheridge representing us say aye."

There was a wild shout of ayes. No votes were called for or given.

"Very well," said Margaret. "Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock I will be ready to receive a committee of men who are workers, men who have been supporting their families by their labor in the works of the Ainsworth company. Don't send any one else. If you do I shall decline to act for you."

She withdrew, followed by wild shouts from laborers delighted with the novel plan of endeavoring to secure their demands through a stockholder and a woman. In ten minutes more the neighborhood was deserted.

The next morning Richard Ainsworth was at Margaret's home some time before the appearance of the committee and was shown into a room by himself, ready to decide upon any proposition that might be made. When the committee arrived they were placed in the drawing room. Margaret entered and said:

"Make your demand."

"Our only demand," replied the spokesman, "is for 10 per cent advance."

"If the rate is granted, how long before a demand will be made for another raise?"

The committee conferred and finally agreed to pledge themselves that no new demand should be made within two years.

"How is the management of the company to be assured that you will keep this pledge?"

After another consultation the spokesman said: "Every operative will sign a written pledge to you, and you can give your word to the management."

"Very well. Wait here."

Withdrawing, Margaret went into the room occupied by the manager and made him the proposition.

Now Richard Ainsworth had a shrewd head in more ways than one. He could see an opportunity when it presented itself, and he saw one now.

"Margaret," he said, "the terms are accepted on one condition."

"What is it?"

"That you make an additional pledge."

"What pledge?"

"To become my wife."

Margaret was not ready to give a definite answer. She tried to satisfy him with an evasion. All to no purpose. He stood firm as a rock. Either the stipulation must be introduced into the agreement or the strike must go on. Finally she put out her hand and turned away her face. Ainsworth took the hand and sealed the contract with a kiss.

That night there was a demonstration about Margaret Etheridge's home, and nothing would satisfy the representatives in a chair on their shoulders around the factory and home again.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

READY FOR BREAKFAST (5 A. M.).

energy, and this must be fed regularly. A man's digester is supposed to rest three times a day. A hen in daylight is nearly always picking and feeding her gizzard, and at night her full crop keeps her gizzard going. Does any animal scratch harder, produce as many pounds in proportion to its size or as much profit for the outlay? Nit.

The normal hen as a digester, assimilator and producer is a perpetual motion machine. She is a manufacturer of a finished product, done up in an unadorned, original package, and her food fuel must be plentiful and continuous, or out go the fires.

This little lay sermon on regularity is in particular for the man who has the hen at his mercy in a pen with little range for natural food, for the man who wants eggs when it's snowing and cold, cold winter outside. Yes, this letter is for the fellow who feeds his hens any old time or sometimes once a day and sometimes not at all.

May God be merciful to him, a sinner, and may he never have to go hungry! For want of good, regular food in sufficient quantity men suffer; they cannot work well; they weaken; they become targets for disease. This is true of Biddy and old Fan.

Note the chickens at the gate. They have come for breakfast. Breakfast is served at 5 a. m., and they are on time. If fed twice or three times a day they are at that gate on the dot, ready for the meal their system requires. They are not disappointed, and when their owner gathers eggs he is not disappointed either.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

It is wise for you to remember when you hear the extravagant claims made for sprouted oats that sprouted or dry its nutritive qualities remain the same.

One of our poultry journal doctors prescribes a "family liver pill" every night for six weeks for a poor rooster that's under the weather. This is only a sample of yellow poultry journal dope.

Towanda, Pa., boasts a hen that practices "never put off till tomorrow what you can do today." Instead of laying ordinary eggs on successive days she lays three eggs in one. "Go thou and do likewise."

Near Kittanning, Pa., forty-eight men were arrested and fifty games were captured at a cockfight. The birds were turned over to a hospital, where many of the patients chewed the rag when they chewed old tough stag.

Dwarf Essex rape sown broadcast like turnips, if in good ground, is a quick grower, reaching as high as six feet. A patch of this green sown early will afford splendid food and shade for brooder chicks and fine greens for yarded stock.

Chickens need vegetables every day, not so much for the nutrition it affords as for its effect on the appetite and digestion. When hens do not have sufficient greens to add bulk to the ration of grain they get overtired, eggs are few and infertile, and digestive disturbances ensue.

In an interpretation of the pure food drug act of 1906 the supreme court has decreed that the federal government may pursue adulterated food from one state back to its origin if the original package has not been broken. The fuss was about fifty cans of eggs doped with boric acid that were shipped from St. Louis to Peoria, Ill. This is once that "Show Me Land" got showed up.

When E. S. Karslake, Honesdale, Pa., found two chilled pigs in a litter just born he quickly placed them in an incubator from which ninety chicks had just been removed, and the half dead piglets were soon squealing and kicking in their nice warm quarters. The eggshells of the hatch had not been removed, and when the children came home from school and saw those little squealers among the shells it took the whole family to convince them that those pigs weren't a hen product.

REGULAR RATIONS FOR MEN AND HEN.

Don't some fellows make Rome howl when dinner's late?

"Yes," cries Marlar, "but they are a hundred times oftener late for dinner than the meal's late."

That's true. Give our good cooks their due. They stay awake nights to invent epicurean delights; they know our strength will fall on a slim-dinner pall and our stomachs won't run steady if our eats aren't ready.

This is digestible doctrine for men and hen. To bring results Biddy must be fed a good variety of all she can digest for waste, growth, eggs, heat,

THE HIGHER CRITICISM PERIL

Pastor Russell Says That Evolutionists Are Hoodwinking the People.
Counsels a Movement Toward Unity of Creeds—Man Is His Brother's Keeper.

Richmond, Va., August 27.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached here today under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association (Local Branch—unsectarian), composed of the truth-hungry from all denominations.

Asked why such great crowds always attend his addresses, while the churches of all denominations are complaining of slim attendance, Pastor Russell replied, "The people are thinking. Perplexed by the infidelity and Higher Criticism taught in the principal colleges and pulpits, many desire to have an interpretation of the Bible consistent with itself and not at war with the reverential exercise of reason. The Scriptures foretell of our day, saying, 'There shall be a famine in the land; not a famine for bread nor a thirst for water, but for the hearing of the Word of the Lord' (Amos viii, 11). No fairy tales can thoroughly satisfy intelligent thinkers, whose numbers are increasing. Many of those who attend my services and many who read my sermons in the public print long since ceased to attend the church services."

Two services were held, one for the public, considering the great "Hereafter," the other, which we report, had for its text God's call to Cain, after he had slain his brother, "Where is Thy Brother?" and Cain's reply, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" (Genesis iv, 2). The speaker said in part:—

No one can dispute that individualism, personal independence, personal responsibility, has done much for the development of our race. The serfdom and paternalism of the past were unfavorable to individual thought, responsibility and action. No wise and good man would desire to rob his fellows of independence of mind.

One Extreme, Then the Opposite.

We are in danger, however, of going to the opposite extreme—in danger of carrying the subject of personal independence too far—in danger of neglecting some who should have assistance—in danger of thinking of all men as being not only free but equal. While we all should have proper freedom of will, yet all are more or less handicapped in the exercise of the will. As St. Paul said, "We cannot do the things which we would." We are slaves of sin and death; some more and some less. The Prophet David's explanation applies to us all, "I was shapen in iniquity, in sin did my mother conceive me" (Psalm li, 5).

It was in view of such inequalities of the flesh that St. Paul wrote to the Church, "We that are strong should bear with the infirmities of the weak, and not please ourselves [merely]" (Romans xv, 1). This principle, applied by the Apostle to the Church, would certainly be appropriate and beneficial in the natural family. And as our hearts enlarge we should all come to realize more and more the oneness, the solidarity of our race—the entire human family, of which St. Paul says, "Of one blood God created all men, to dwell upon the face of the whole earth" (Acts xvii, 26).

"Where Is Thy Brother?"

God's inquiry of Cain implied Cain's responsibility, and teaches us a lesson respecting our responsibility in God's sight for one another. We will begin with the Church, the highest type of brotherhood imaginable. We should not be content to split into sects and parties. Whatever was the ignorance of the past, which led to the formation of the various creeds and denominations, there can be no excuse for these now, because Christians of all denominations have come to discredit the old creeds. Should there not, then, be a movement toward heart unity and fellowship, outside of denominational and creedal lines, amongst those who recognize God as Father, the Lord Jesus Christ as the Redeemer, and the Bible as the Divine Revelation?

It is not proper to say as did Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Every true Christian should realize that to-day Christianity is being assaulted in its own House and by its professed friends. In the universities, colleges and seminaries of all denominations a battle is raging, which threatens the destruction of our Christian faith. Possibly a few are blind to the situation, but the insurgents—the Higher Critics and Evolutionists—realize the situation and are craftily saying to the people, "We are the Watchmen upon the walls of Zion! Harken to our cry: All is well!" These Higher Critics seem to have no conscience. They claim that the people must be gradually taken by gullie. They encourage them to "sleep," while they raise over them the banner of infidelity called Higher Criticism.

Many who see the killing of this antitypical Abel shrink the responsibility by saying, "Am I my brother's keeper?" not realizing that from the Divine standpoint they have a responsibility toward every other Christian with whom they are in contact. They should realize that loyalty to God means that they "should show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into his marvelous light."

In a word, every true Christian who has made a full consecration of himself to the Lord, to walk in the footsteps of the Savior, should wake to the fact that we are in a critical time. We are in the time mentioned by St. Paul, when "every man's work shall be tried so as by fire" (1 Corinthians iii, 13). The testing will be along the lines both of faith and of works. Only those holding firmly to "the faith once delivered to the saints" will be able to bring forth such fruits, such good works, as the testings of this hour require. This class, awake to their responsibility toward God and the brethren and the Bible, and full of zeal therefore, will thereby be kept in this "evil day." God will bless them in their endeavors to glorify Him.

My Brother's Keeper—Socially.

In the days of slavery and serfdom, every master, every feudal lord, recognized a responsibility for his servants or slaves. He was interested in their health and in their morals, for they were his property, and any depreciation meant financial loss to him. Thus selfish interest kept him alive to his responsibility, to a considerable degree. But now all that has changed. Serfs and slaves, released from obligation, are without supervision and care. The less fit of our race are in serious danger of being crowded to the wall. Our lawmakers have recognized the fact and have thrown around the weaker sex and children safeguards in the laws, protecting them from designing people who would exploit them for selfish purposes.

Nevertheless, with all that human law has yet been able to accomplish, the danger is increased. As knowledge increases, trusts and combinations selfishly boost the price of life's necessities and luxuries. Those members of our race less favorably equipped for the battle of life are seriously disadvantaged, some by reason of less intellectual powers, others by reason of unfavorable circumstances and environments.

Under such conditions it is not surprising that all who are able are banding together into unions for their own protection; nor should it surprise us that these, also, selfish and hard of heart, should sometimes be unjust in their demands, and sometimes cruel and ready to slay their brother who joins them not in their organization. In their desire to promote the best interests of their craft they may, indeed, reasonably exhort fellow-craftsmen to support the organization, and may show its advantages, but beyond that they dare not go without infracting the principles of justice and bringing Divine condemnation which, sooner or later, in one way or another, will surely be meted out.

Seen from this standpoint, unionism has a responsibility toward brethren not members of the union—to treat them justly, kindly, helpfully. And no doubt this attitude would bring the larger blessing and truer prosperity.

My Brother's Keeper—Financially.

Gradually the world is realizing its responsibility to the weak and incompetent and aged. The Orphanages, Hospitals, Homes for the Poor, etc., are all proper recognitions of the brotherhood of man—aside from the higher brotherhood in Christ. We cannot claim that these institutions are the product of pure benevolence. We must admit that politics has much to do with them. The desire for contracts and for labor in connection with these institutions, has, of course, much to do with their existence. The expenditure of such enormous sums as annually go to these institutions naturally enough draws an army of political heifers and outlookers.

The Day of Reckoning.

The All-Seeing eye of our Creator keeps watch over the affairs of His creatures today as it kept watch over Abel's interests. God allowed Cain to have his way; allowed him to kill his brother; allowed the righteous to suffer; yet Cain did not escape, but was held accountable for the death of his brother. God's sentence upon him separated him from his brethren until he cried out that his punishment was greater than he could bear. And, similarly, we may be sure that the Cain class of our day will be held accountable for the wilful slaying of their brother, especially to the extent that the brother despised may be a child of God. As God declared that the blood of Abel cried to Him from the ground—cried for justice—so the intimation of the Scriptures is that all in justice of every kind, everywhere will bring a "just recompense of reward."

St. James figuratively represents the laborers, the toilers in the field of labor today, as crying out to God, and as being heard, and its resulting in a great "time of trouble," in which the great, the mighty and the rich shall weep bitterly (James v, 1). As these are not the union men, generally, who are crying out at the present time, we may look more especially amongst those on the outside; but the lesson is that those who suffer oppression will ultimately have Divine power exercised in their defense and for their relief. St. James intimates that this release will come to this class at the coming of Messiah, in power and great glory, for the establishment of His Kingdom of Righteousness in the world. To those who are the Lord's people he says, "Have patience, brethren, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." The Lord speaks of this "Day of Recompense" as a "time of trouble"—of the overthrow of oppression, the uplifting of the poor and those that have no helper (Ps. lxxii, 12). "The Desire of All Nations Shall Come."

Those who are entirely satisfied with present conditions are the comparatively few who have special advantages. The masses are discontented—some of them properly so, and others of them more discontented than is reasonable. All but the very poorest and worst situated are better off today than were their grandfathers—yet less contented. The "spirit" of discontent, selfishness and a failure to note and to enjoy the great blessings which God has provided so bountifully, as well as wonderfully, in our day, prevails. Nevertheless, some have reason for discontent; and some, looking into the future, are fearing worse conditions, as the monopolies have gained a firmer grip upon all the necessities of life.

Surely their forebodings are not without grounds. Unless something shall occur to lift matters out of their present rut, human intelligence sees, at a not far distant day, a new serfdom, with masters directing all the forces of the world, and with the common people at their mercy, glad to have a sufficiency of work and of wage for life's necessities.

Long ago the speaker harbored the theory taught him in his creed, that mankind is totally depraved; but surely none are totally depraved except the idiotic. The speaker believed that there is an element favorable to righteousness in every member of our race, and that sin is largely the result of unfavorable environments; and that the majority of mankind would be glad, indeed, if some Divine interposition were to lift them and their affairs out of present conditions and put them upon a plane of absolute righteousness, justice, equity. This, the speaker believes, is the desire of a large element in every nation, a predominating class. Such a reign of righteousness, justice, equity in the world, will speedily result, he said, from the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom, for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

Most explicitly do the Scriptures declare this, saying, "The desire of all nations shall come" (Haggai ii, 7). This declaration is in conjunction with the foretelling of the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom. "The reign of righteousness which it will inaugurate will be the ideal of the masses of mankind, although quite probably the overthrow of Trusts and Combinations will, for a time, not be viewed sympathetically by the rich, the wise, the preferred, the favored class, under present conditions. As it required time for the slave holders of the past to become reconciled to the loss of their slaves and to see the righteousness of their being freed, so it will be with those who at present are closely identified with great institutions which are bringing mankind into slavery. Our Lord sized up the situation, saying, Blessed are you who weep and mourn, for you shall be comforted. Woe unto those who are full, for they shall have distress (Luke vi, 21, 25). The reign of justice and righteousness will ultimately appeal to all in heart harmony with Jehovah, and all who fail to thus come into heart harmony with Him will be accounted as unworthy of His gift of everlasting life; for 'He who loves not his brother whom he hath seen, how could he love God whom he hath not seen?'

The thousand years of Messiah's reign, during which His Bride, the Elect Church, will be associated with Him, will be quite sufficient for the equalization of all of life's affairs for the entire race. "In His day shall the righteous flourish," and not the merely strong. In His Day evil doers and not well doers will be crushed. It is written of His Kingdom that it "shall lift up the poor out of the dunghill, and shall bring down the mighty from their seats."

The Disciplines According to Previous Character-Development.

The whole world of mankind will then be transferred into the hands of Messiah, who will take them just as they are. They will be in various conditions. Some will be more depraved, others less depraved; some will be more seared in their consciences and some less; and these deficiencies of character will depend upon the way in which each one accepted or rejected light and opportunity in the present time. Those who knew not His will and did not will receive few stripes; those who knew His will and did not will receive many stripes, because of previous hardening of character. Everybody will be required, eventually, to come up to the full standard of Divine requirements. Those more depraved will have greater difficulty and those less depraved will have less difficulty and receive fewer stripes, in the coming up to Divine requirements.

Those who most willingly and most gladly assent to the leveling process will most quickly receive the Divine blessing and make the most rapid progress along the Highway of Holiness, back to full human perfection and eternal life. And those who now, in advance of the establishment of the Kingdom, love righteousness and hate iniquity, come at present into favor with the King of kings, and thus are specially favored with light and knowledge, and are invited to become associated with Messiah in His glorious Kingdom, which is to effect the long-promised, great reformation of earth's affairs. Let us all take to heart and apply well this lesson, but especially those who have heard and who have responded to the Divine invitation to become heirs of God and joint-heirs with our Redeemer.

To Live 140 Years.

The natural term of man's life, arguing from the logic and evidence of comparative zoology, is 140 years—and even this is not the limit.

Life is a promissory note due one day after date, payable on demand, but by right living we can defer payment almost indefinitely.

Eminent scientists tell us that—
The life of the bones is 5,000 years.
The life of the lungs is 1,500 years.
The life of the skin is 900 years.
The life of the liver is 400 years.
The life of the kidneys is 300 years.
The life of the heart is 300 years.
If 300 years is the life of the heart, then one could not have the heart to live after that.

The Hindus, in the development of the physical man, claim for him not only longevity, but immunity from disease. They say to him: "He is determined not to fall sick, and he never does. He lives long, a hundred years is nothing to him; he is quite young and fresh when he is 150."

Marriage is just a lottery they say;
It looks that way.
So many blanks appear —, 'tis true;

MORE EVIDENCE

It is Coming in Rapidly in Bedford.

Evidence on the following subject will prove of interest to every Bedford reader. So many people go through the same experience daily. This public statement should be proof positive to every wavering doubter. Read it carefully.

Mrs. Martha Davidson, 357 W. Pitt Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "I was in poor health and I now feel certain that my condition was due to disordered kidneys. I was subject to nervous spells and headaches and there was a constant, dull ache in the small of my back. The least work tired me and I felt miserable in every way when I happened to see Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. I procured a box at John R. Dull's Drug Store and they acted just as represented, bringing prompt and effective relief. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a most reliable kidney medicine." (Statement given October 14, 1907.)

A Permanent Cure

When Mrs. Davidson was interviewed on November 13, 1909, she added: "I still have unlimited confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills and I am willing to again recommend them. The relief they gave me has been permanent."

The Brighter Side.

It was a beautiful barometer. It glinted from its splendid wooden case with a spick-and-spanness that boasted of its newness. Its rich framework clearly advertised the large price that had been paid for it. Its owner was justly proud.

But it possessed one drawback—it wouldn't work. Ever since it had been purchased it had remained at "Set Fair," whatever the weather had happened to be. And the weather had happened to be particularly wet.

At last its owner grew weary of its external beauty and expended over its internal stupidity. One day when the rain was pouring extra hard, he tore the weather indicator from the wall and took it out into the road.

"Now, then," he cried, shaking it angrily, "can't you see it's raining?" For a moment the needle hesitated. Then, as the raindrops began to dim the glass, it made up its mind and moved slowly round to "Very Dry."

There's nothing so good for a sore throat as Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil. Cures it in a few hours. Relieves any pain in any part.

Wanted the Day to Himself.

Nothing makes us quite so weary as these elaborate, gotten-up-ahead-of-time jokes that some people stage and spring with such a dramatic effect. Our Washington correspondent told us of one of these, the other day. A man went into the patent office, last week, and said he wanted a copyright. They steered him to the right department, and he opened up like this: "This is Saturday, is it not? Thank you. I understand that you will not issue a copyright on Sunday?" "No, sir. That is the rule."

"But you will issue a copyright on any other day of the week?" "Yes, sir."

"I'm so glad. I want to get Friday copyrighted. It's my birthday, and I don't want any other fellows using it. How much will it cost?"

An Immense Flower.

The largest of all the flowers of the world is said to be the Rafflesia, a native of Sumatra, so called after Sir Stamford Raffles. This immense flower is composed of five round petals of a brickish color, each measuring a foot across. These are covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings.

The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens. The cup of the Rafflesia is filled with a fleshy disk, the upper surface of which is covered with projections like miniature cows' horns. The cup when free from its contents will hold about twelve pints. The flower weighs about fifteen pounds and is very thick, the petals being three-quarters of an inch—Scientific American.

Death the Great Democrat.

"The man willing to die becomes the master of the world. This is an overture of universal emancipation; it excludes no one. The beginning of liberty is the discovery of the beauty of death. There can be no freedom among men who are afraid to die; and a people to whom success is necessary cannot build a city that is great. The cities of the world—New York, London, Paris—are provincial; we have yet to build a metropolis—a city of the soul—a city whose citizens are not afraid of death—a capital of democracy. Death is the revealer of the soul; therefore death is the great democrat."—Charles Ferguson

The Shutter is No More.

A writer describes the forenoon Sunday Strand and Fleet Street as "a shuttered desert," and doubtless he is quite satisfied with the phrase. But is it accurate? How many shuttered windows does he think he would see in these thoroughfares on a Sunday or at any other time when the shops are shut? As a matter of fact the shutter has gone from central London, and is rapidly passing even from the suburbs at what date did the shutter begin to disappear? It was a shutting of all shops as late as the '80s. The worst the modern shop shows on Sundays is the blind. And most shops present the week-day temptation with a closed door.—London Chronicle.
